

Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments

IN THE NEWS

'Futurist' Predicts Challenges for Expeditionary Army

May 7, 2015 | Fort Hood Sentinel

By: J.D. Leipold

Related Expert: Andrew F. Krepinevich

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Cyber, electronic warfare and anti-satellite operations are just a few of the threats facing the United States in the Pacific, said a "futurist," who spoke recently at the Pentagon.

Addressing a standing-room-only audience of largely logistics Soldiers and civilians from Army G-4, Andrew Krepinevich Jr., president of the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments, spoke on the sustainment and logistics challenges facing the future force, April 23.