Eric S. Edelman, a veteran diplomat and policy adviser during both the Clinton and George W. Bush administrations, has been appointed as the next James R. Schlesinger Distinguished Professor at the University of Virginia's Miller Center.

As the Schlesinger Professor over the next 12 months, Edelman will participate in Miller Center conferences; engage with faculty and students across the University at the Batten School of Leadership and Public Policy, the School of Law, and the history and politics departments; contribute to the First Year project and other Miller Center publications; and appear on the center's signature public affairs television interview program, "American Forum."...
