Enable Policymakers To Make Informed Decisions

CSBA is the world's premier center for understanding future international competition and conflict. Our mission is to develop innovative, resource-informed defense concepts, promote public debate, and spur action to advance U.S. and allied interests.

CSBA relies on charitable contributions and grants to support its public education programs, including research, writing and publishing studies and briefs, testifying before congressional committees, presenting to academic, civic, and professional groups, and interacting with the media. Our team receives support for its research from foundations, government, corporate and individual sponsors who share our conviction that the best analysis is produced by expert researchers free to identify and explore cutting-edge issues and to take a long-term perspective.

Sponsors who support CSBA's work value and respect its independence and insights. CSBA is a 501(c) 3 tax-exempt organization and contributions are tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law. To make a tax-deductible charitable contribution to CSBA through our online portal, please use the online contributions form below. Your receipt will be sent to the email you provide.
