

Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments

Publications

"Nobody does defense policy better than CSBA. Their work on strategic and budgetary topics manages to combine first-rate quality and in-depth research with timeliness and accessibility—which is why so many professionals consider their products indispensable." – Gideon Rose, Editor of Foreign Affairs, 2010-2021

BRIEFS

To Preserve Extended Nuclear Deterrence in Europe an American Should be SACEUR

April 18, 2025 | Eric Edelman, Franklin C. Miller

Recent press reports suggest that Pentagon leaders are considering a dramatic organizational change, including the traditional U.S. role of providing NATO with its Supreme Allied

STUDIES

Peaceful Resolution: Reframing U.S. Defense Strategy Toward Taiwan

April 17, 2025 | Jack Bianchi

America's strategic approach to Taiwan is ripe for reevaluation. Although Washington's sensitivity to Taiwan's security challenges has increased markedly in recent years, U.S. policy toward Taiwan remains

STUDIES

The Lost Art of the Bargaining Chip? The Case for Gaining Negotiating Leverage for Nuclear Arms Control With Russia and China

February 6, 2025 | David A. Cooper

Over the past decade, as Russia and China have enhanced their nuclear capabilities, the United States has sought to negotiate arms control agreements that would avoid a new nuclear arms

BRIEFS

Understanding NATO's Concept for Deterrence and Defense of the Euro-Atlantic Area

May 20, 2024 | Katherine E. Dahlstrand, Sean Monaghan, Sara Bjerg Moller

NATO, the largest and most powerful military alliance in history, turned seventy-five in April. In July, the leaders of NATO will return to the site where its founding document, the Washington Treaty, was

BRIEFS

2023 Annual Report

January 30, 2024

For nearly three decades, CSBA has provided consistent, high-quality, and innovative research on defense strategy, budgets, and the security environment.

BRIEFS

An Ongoing and Necessary Renaissance: NATO's Nuclear Posture

January 25, 2024 | Eric Edelman, Franklin C. Miller

President Putin's nuclear saber-rattling while the war in Ukraine has raged, along with lurid nuclear threats by Russian officials and propaganda, have once again focused attention on NATO's nuclear