

Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments

Tyler Hacker

Research Fellow

hacker@csbaonline.org

Tyler Hacker is a research fellow at the Center for Strategic and Budgetary Assessments. His work focuses on long-range strike and future operational concepts for great power conflict. Since joining CSBA, he has written on topics including precision-guided munitions, ground-based fires, joint command and control, military innovation, and European security. Prior to joining CSBA, Tyler was an analyst at the Congressional Research Service, where he supported the members and staff of the U.S. Congress with analysis on subjects related to defense logistics. Tyler previously served as a field artillery officer in the United States Army in Germany, where he participated in NATO operations and exercises in Poland, Romania, and the Baltic states. He has also worked at the U.S. Army War College and the American Enterprise Institute.

Education

M.A in Security Studies

Georgetown University

B.A. in International Studies

Virginia Military Institute

Study Abroad, Intelligence Policy

University of Oxford

Areas of Expertise

- Future Warfare
- Defense Strategy
- Great Power Competition